Western Pacific Files Deeds for Rights of Way

Deeds for rights of way for the peninsula line of the Western Pacific Company have been filed with County Recorder T. C. Rice this week over two large pieces of property. The deeds are for a right of way 100 feet wide over the property of the Tacoma Mill Company and the Leslie Salt Company. The right of way on the Tacoma Mill Company land will bring the proposed railway line across the 25 acres of the mill company near Redwood City. The deed from the salt company carries the road across 26 acres of that company.

County Asked to Unite for Fire Emergencies

Governor Asks All Counties To Aid in Combating Fire Menace

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 28—San Mateo county's board of supervisors has been asked by Governor Rolph to organize a county fire emergency committee.

Such a move is in line with the policy adopted by the governor when he created the California fire emergency committee as a step in combating what promises to be one of the worst fire seasons in the history of the state.

In the opinion of Governor Rolph, the county units will provide one of the most effective means of conducting a state-wide educational campaign against carelessness that ends in the destruction of California forests and scenery.

"A thorough campaign should be waged from now until the first rains of next fall," the governor said. "To this end I am calling upon every civic and public body in California to work with the state committee, depending upon the county boards of supervisors to take the initiative."

The necessity of such a plan was strongly emphasized at the time the announcement was made when scores of fires broke out throughout the state, and the fire season was opened with the destruction of thousands of acres of valuable timber, grain and grass.

It would be the duty of the county groups, under this plan, to conduct an educational campaign as a preventative measure. They also will be asked to organize the facilities of the individual counties so as to offer immediate and effective aid in the event of a major fire.

Governor Rolph already has enlisted the aid of the national guard, California highway patrol and the border quarantine patrol of the state department of agriculture, to aid in the fire prevention campaign as serve as possible "shock troops."

The state committee, under the leadership of Charles H. Howard, and including state departmental chiefs and the board of forestry, is planning a series of meetings to formulate proper plans to continue the campaign.

Olivet and Holy Cross cemeteries. Mrs. Mamie Glennan did the same service at the cemeteries at Redwood City and Menlo Park. A beautiful custom is observed at these ceremonies, the crossing of the American and Bear Flags as they are placed on each grave.

EXPENDITURE FOR SCHOOLS ON INCREASE

Schools of San Mateo County Cost During Year $2,111,715

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 28—It cost California counties $136,354,794.66 to send their respective Jacks and Jills up the educational hill last year.

The total as revealed in the report of Ray L. Riley, state controller, represents a marked increase over the previous year when county education costs amounted to $128,237,152.16.

Keeping step with others in the matter of school costs, San Mateo county spent a total of $2,111,715, of which $764,146 was for elementary school expenses and $653,195 for high school expenses.

This same ratio was carried out approximately in the summary of total expenditures. In the 58 counties of the state, $62,895,108.74 was spent for elementary schools and $7,612,762.94 on high school expenses.

Other items included in the county and general summary are outlays, superintendent of schools, board of education, county library, and miscellaneous expenses.

As a result of the steady increase in such costs, the recent legislature passed several laws designed to provide a check to steadily mounting expenditures.

The first of these measures to receive legislative approval provides that school budgets must be published before approval.

The second and most important proposal, created a board of appeal to include the board of education, three members appointed by the educators and three by the board of supervisors.

Protests to proposed school expenditures may, if Governor Rolph signs the bill, be taken before the board for hearing. The group is given the power to make downward adjustments, but cannot increase the budget.

The plan represents the first step in giving the people a direct voice in educational expenditures, hitherto controlled entirely by educational authorities of the respective districts.

When Knight was arraigned in the Superior Court here last week, District Attorney Franklin Swart held that a bond under which he had been released was not in proper force.

He acted stubborn about the matter, however, and argued with the judge and was given a stiff fine.

S. F. JAIL SITE MAY NOT BE LOCATED IN SAN MATEO CO.

Prices of Sites Offered in This County Declared To Be Too High by San Francisco Valuation Expert; Three Sites in City Now Being Considered

San Francisco may keep its own jail. Property owners in San Mateo county have been charged by Joseph J. Phillips, right-of-way man and land expert of San Francisco, with "skying" prices on property offered to San Francisco as sites for the proposed jail.

Six sites were considered by the San Francisco supervisors' jail site committee for possible locations for the jail in this county. All of these were considered too expensive although the price on some of them has been reduced.

The Pillar Point site, favored by the sheriff but said by San Francisco supervisors to be opposed by San Mateo supervisors, was first offered for $100,000 and now reduced $98,750 with a credit of $5750 for present rentals, Phillips said. It was worth $75,000 he added.

The Driver ranch, most southerly, has been reduced in price, is now offered for $65,000 and is worth not more than $35,000, he said.

The Butts ranch, near Halfmoon Bay, is now offered for $95,000 and is worth somewhat less, Phillips argued.

The Casanelli property, offered at $95,000, is worth $57,000, while the Francesci ranch offered at $85,000 is worth "a third and not more than a half of that," according to Phillips.

Instead of the sites in this county, three sites are now being considered by the San Francisco supervisors within the boundaries of San Francisco. One of these is located adjacent to McLaren Park, is well adapted for the purpose and can be purchased at a reasonable price, according to Phillips.

The other is a part of the Fort Funston reservation. Abandonment of the fort has been recommended by the war department and use of such property by state or local governments for public purposes was recently suggested by President Hoover, according to Adolph Uhl.

Both of these sites have been inspected by Phillips, Mayor Rossi and Sheriff William Fitzgerald of San Francisco.

The final decision as to location of the jail will be made by the supervisors some time next week after Phillips finishes his appraisals and investigations concerning the available sites.

Engine Thief Held at Jail

Judge Edward I. McAuliffe has set Thursday at 1:30 p. m. as the time for hearing charges against Dino Bacchi, accused of stealing an outboard gasoline boat motor from the government surveying crew which is working on the survey of the bay. Bacchi was arraigned yesterday morning.

Dino Bocchi, 20, was brought from San Francisco Tuesday afternoon by Chief of Police C. L. Collins and booked at the county jail

Piastro to Lead Summer Concerts

Mischel Piastro, who for the past several seasons has been the concert-master of the orchestra engaged for the summer concerts in the Woodland theatre will again occupy the first chair as head of the violin section, but this summer's engagament will be the last in California.

Widly known as a virtuoso violinist and conductor as well as concert-master for the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra during the winter season for a number of years, Piastro has become a familiar figure to symphony concert audiences here.

Recent announcement of his appointment as concert-master for the New York Philharmonic Orchestra under the direction of Artur Toscanini for the next season and his resignation from the San Francisco orchestra prompted inquiries at the office of the San Mateo Philharmonic Society as to whether Piastro would appear in his accustomed place this summer. He had however already signed his contract for this season's engagement before leaving for New York a few weeks ago, thus assuring his appearance or the Sunday concerts.

The first concert this year will be given on Sunday, June 21st, with Walter Damrosch, the well-known conductor and at present musical director for the National Broadcasting company a sguest conductor. Sir Hamilton Harty of Manchester, England; Pierre Monteux of Paris, Alexander Smallens of Philadelphia and Artur Rozinski of Los Angeles will appear as guest conductors during the season of eight concerts.

She struck the latter machine forcing it into the third car. The cars were only slightly damaged as the result of the crash. Miss Merta's car was the most seriously damaged, receiving a bent axle and crushed fenders.

Rancher Thought Murdered or Suicide, Says He Took Drink Friday

Louis Figone, Colma rancher thought either to have been a suicide or the victim of gangsters, staggered into his home at Colma Tuesday night and said that he did not remember anything after having taken a drink at Colma the Friday before.

Figone's truck was found last Friday abandoned on the coast road near Mussel rock, and this led to the blief that he had either been attacked and perhaps killed by racketeers, or that he had committed suicide.

Figone told a story of having taken a load of produce to San Francisco for which he received $400. He then says he took a drink with some friends and does not remember anything until he woke up in a vacant lot Tuesday night. He was without hat and coat when he woke up and had only $150 of the $400 which he claims to have secured in San Francisco.

It was on Figone's ranch that the alleged plot to poison all hands by means of poison in soup and in wine was discovered.

SPUR TRACK CASE TO BE CONSIDERED

"Orphan Spur" To Go To U. S. Supreme Court For Decision

The old fight still goes on. The Western Pacific is going to build its peninsula line, but it still has to overuome a few obstacles left in its way by the Southern Pacific in its fight to keep the competing line off the peninsula. One of these is the so-called "orphan spur" across the right of way of the Western Pacific at San Mateo.

The controversey concerning this unconnected piece of track will be reopened as the result of the decision of the United States Supreme court to review the case.

A ruling of th appellate court which held that the Western Pacific could not sue the Southern Pacific for an injunction to prevent the latter from extending lines in San Mateo county is the point to be reviewed by the highest court.

The issue came into court nearly two years ago when the S. P., working Saturday afternoon and Sunday, threw on "orphan spur" across proposed rights of way of the W. P. with the announced purpose of serving a future industrial area along the bayshore in East San Mateo.

The W. P. secured an injunction on the ground that the S. P. was not seeking to serve a potential industrial area, but was endeavoring to block construction of the proposed W. P. freight line. The injunction, granted by United States District Judge Frank H. Kerringan, was reversed when taken to the appellate court by the S. P.

The supreme court will review the decision with the opening of its sessions next fall, said the notice today.

It was stated that the water district has reached agreements with the water companies for the purchase.

Another meeting of the people of Belmont will be held next Tuesday when the question of boundaries of the water district shall consist of the present limits of the incorporated city of Belmont, or whether it shall include outside territory will be settled at that time.

CITY WILL VOTE ON BONDS FOR SCHOOLS HERE WEDNESDAY

Proposed Issue for Additions to School And For New Building Will Not Add To City's Tax Rate

Next Wednesday the people of Redwood City will vote upon an important issue having to do with the future growth and welfare of the community. This is the proposed issue of $85,000 in bonds for the Redwood City elementary school district.

The bond issue is vitally needed by the school district, as the present school facilities are overcrowded and the number of pupils in the school of Redwood City is rapidly increasing. The proposed bond issue, and this is the important point in the matter, will not increase the tax rate of Redwood City one cent. The fact that the bond issue of 1916, issued for the construction of the Lineoln and Washington schools, will be retired on the first of the year, makes it possible to issue these bonds without any additional cost to the taxpayer.

It is the plan of the school trustees to use the funds which will be made available by the proposed bond issue for the purpose of enlarging the present Garfield school by the addition of two rooms. A new school is to be built in the Eagle Hill district on a 7-acre tract of land owned there by the school district; and land is to be purchased for other schools to be used later as needed. Sites can be obtained now at much lower costs to the district than will be possible in a few years. The Central School property on Broadway is considered far too valuable for business property to be used for a school. This site is inadequate for a school, and the highway conditions on each side of the grounds constitute an element of danger to the children. The sale of this property will supply enough money to build two schools on property which it is proposed to buy now. This will take care of the school problem for many years to come.

The conditions of the school districts of nearby towns are shown in a table compiled by John Gill, superintendent of schools of the Redwood City district. This table shows that Redwood City district is in much better shape financially than either Burlingame or San Mateo. The figures follow:

Assessed Valuations of Districts

San Mateo—7,410,240; Burlingame, $5,971,825; Redwood City, $6,225,655.

Bonding Capacity

San Mateo—$370,512; Burlingame—$298,591; Redwood City, $311,282.

Outstanding Bonded Indebtedness as of June 30, 1930

San Mateo—$318,000; Burlingame—$287,000; Redwood City, $206,000.

A glance will indicate that Burlingame and San Mateo are bonded almost to capacity, while Redwood has over $105,000 available which is a remarkable showing.

The total value of the buildings and grounds of the Redwood City grammar school is estimated at $600,000.

Putting the Law to Work

In this country there is a quaint old custom among legislators of passing laws without giving thought to their practicability. After an impracticable law has been passed, the police have to exercise discretion in enforcing it.

"Such discretion," writes William L. Chenery, editor of Collier's Weekly and one of the most vigorous commentators on current topics, "is an open and an irresistible invitation to bribery. Human nature being what it is, weak and greedy officials will inevitably use their opportunities corruptly or at least unfairly."

This habit of heedless legislation, of writing hopes and aspirations into laws regardless of the consequences, goes deep into history.

Nearly every city thus writes into its building codes provisions which are not enforced and which often never were intended to be enforced.

If anyone is looking for real signs of sensible progress in this country, he may well consider the existing motor laws. A few years ago nearly every state in the Union had on its statute books traffic laws which few obeyed. Speed was ridiculously limited. Fifteen and twenty miles an hour were the common legal limits in villages and cities. Of course, the laws were ignored, but the consequence was a great deal of petty corruption on the part of greedy enforcement officers.

In recent years traffic regulation laws have been reasonably modified. As the law and prevailing custom tend to coincide, less is heard of bribery and injustice. This kind of corruption is fading out.

Booth Tarkington Can See Again

Another miracle of healing has been performed, and Booth Tarkington, America's beloved story teller, can see again. After a long series of operations, he has won a complete victory over a personal affliction which threatened to end his productive career. Thousands of readers will rejoice in the news that he is back in the literary harness again, and the first product of his renewed activities is a novel called "High Summer," which will appear as a serial in the American Magazine, beginning in June.

Booth Tarkington's whole career is an inspiration. It is said that his total earnings in the first five years after his graduation from college were $25, of which $20 was for a drawing and $5 for a poem. In middle life he had to conquer a terrific personal affliction. And at an age when most men would quit he has submitted not to one operation, but to dozens of them, fighting, fighting, fighting, until at last he has won.

Followers of Tarkington's work have wondered eagerly what would be the first literary result of his vision. "High Summer" is the answer to that wondering. Written after he regained his sight, it was largely composed of those black hours when the world was robbed of form and color and motion, and he sat in the silence alone.

The novel shows the influence of that lonely brooding. It raises questions. It cracks the polished surface of modern briskness and reveals the deep caverns of the human heart.

An interesting and tragic essay could be written about influence of blindness on the arts. Would Homer have seen the siege of Troy more clearly if he had not been blind? Would Milton, if his eyes had been normal ever have looked into the high reaches of Paradise? Galileo, blind, saw so much of the starry heavens that it took the world many generations to catch up with him. Blind, Handel stood between the audience and the orchestra and himself conducted his own sad song of the blind Samson. The agony of each of these men enriched the race. Tarkington's new novel presents us with another example of the same kind, but with a happier background in the miracle of surgery, which has given him back his sight.

Why, Los Angeles!

Every resident of the City of Angels should blush with shame at the way that little town in France does its boosting. In fact it makes even the most ardent Californian admit that we have been done one better. The United Press tells of how the police in the town of Avillon treat the tourists. It says:

"Instead of arresting motorists for infractions of the law, the police of Avallon give them a printed slip which says: "It is forbidden to speed (or park) here. Next time please go slower. Take advantage of your passing here to visit our beauty spots, a list of which follows."

Well, we still have something to look forward to.

Alabama Justice

Justice in Alabama, it would seem, is of two sorts—white justice and black justice. A recent case of the latter in which nine negro boys were sentenced to death has raised the ire of Theodore Dreiser and others, who believe that justice is justice, whether the accused be white, black or grey.

Asserting that no son of a white family in Alabama would be submitted "to the kind of justice which recently ended in death penalty convictions for nine young negroes for assault on women," Dreiser signed an open letter addressed to Governor Miller of the southern state, asking a new trial for the youths, all minors.

Dreiser, author of an American tragedy, acted as chairman of the national commitee for political prisoners. The letter was also signed by Floyd Bell, John Dos Passos, Lincoln Steffens, and a score of others interested in criminal reform.

The statement, according to Dreiser, was prompted "by present epidemic of racial, industrial and political persecutions."

"Your own children," said the letter addressed to the governor "or the minor sons of any influential white family in Alabama, would not be submitted to this kind of justice in an Alabama court, and no state of this union has a right to speak of justice as long as the most friendless negro child, accused of a crime, receives less than the best defense that would be given its wealthiest white citizens."

The nine boys, two of them children of fourteen, and all of them minors, recently were prosecuted on charges of criminal assault said to have been committed against two women riding on a freight train in Jackson county. They were sentenced to Scottsboro to death by electrocution July 10.

"The impression becomes a deep conviction that even-handed justice has not prevailed," said Dreiser's statement. "Undisputed facts are that the two women afterward used as witnesses against the negroes, were traveling in male attire with seven white men or boys."

Aviation Today

Air tragedies like that which took the lives of Knute Rockne and seven others exaggerate the dangers of flying in the public mind. They give the air-timid the idea that when one leaves the ground the odds are against a safe return to earth. And many are the air-timid.

But the facts are against this distorted idea of the hazards of aviation. Reduced to cold mathematical figures, flying is already safer than railroad travel was until a few years ago and, if some basis of comparison were available, it might be found that a Sunday afternoon auto ride is beset with more dangers to life and limb than a transcontinental journey by air.

During the last six months of 1930 scheduled transport planes flew 51,482,633 passenger miles with but one fatal accident, costing two lives—one death for eash 25,741,316 passenger miles flown, representing an improvement in the direction of safety of 1000 per cent over the preceding six months.

Schedued mail and express operation during the last half of last year increased their mileage by one-third and at the same time reduced their fatal accidents from 15 during the corresponding period of 1929 to three. Comparison of these two periods just one year apart shows a drop of 50 per cent in accidents of all kinds.

Aviation did not kill with impunity the world's greatest football coach—the Kansas accident will delay many air conversions — yet the air transports have noticed no less of business as a consequence.—Alameda Times-Star.

One for the Fat Man

Dr. Kinzo Saza of Japan claims that in his country fat men are honest, and that the few fat men who turn criminal can easily be reformed. Over here, however, many men keep thin by being honest, while being a grafter gives others leisure and opportunity to become rotund. Well, East is East and West is West, so maybe Dr. Kinzo's rule does not work for other countries.

American legislators acted on 50,000 proposed statutes this year and enacted more than 14,000 into laws, which number was added to the variously estimated 2,000,000 to 10,000,000 laws enacted since the United States came into being.

The national Congress accounted for 1524 new laws, while legislators of forty-three states to date have passed more than 12,000 out of 48,403 bills introduced, and some legislative sessions still are in progress. North Carolina, just finishing the longest legislative session in its history, is expected to write 825 new laws into the books.

Genius, which means transcendent capacity for taking trouble, first of all—Carlyle.

'Tis man's nature to make the best of a bad thing once past.
A bitter and perplexed, "What shall I do?"
Is worse to man than worst necessity.
—Schiller.

A speculative despair is unpardonable, where it is our duty to act.—Burke.

GAY ADVENTURERS
BY MILDRED BARBOUR

"I'm trying to tell you what happened," she began, when suddenly a terrible thought struck her.

Illustrated by Hugh Hutton
(Copyright, 1928, Metropolitan Newspaper Service, New York)

CONCERNING THE ACTION AND CHARACTERS

SHEILA ALLEN, bound for Europe in a tourist cabin, has a cabinmate,

CONSTANCE KERR, a millionaire's daughter, who is her twin in looks. Sheila, after years in a rural town, is seeking adventure.

She has refused to marry her guardian, YOUNG DOCTOR MALCOM BAXTER. Constance tells Sheila she is Heaven-sent-a means of escape from a terrible mess.

Constance is fleeing from her husband, THE COUNT DE BELLEFONTE, whom she married that morning.

She consented to marry him after a quarrel with HARRY EDMONDS, with whom she is desperately in love.

His letters begging her forgiveness are kept from her by her mother. She finds them immediately after her marriage. Realizing that she can never be the Count's wife, she takes passage for Europe at once. Harry is in England.

She begs Sheila to impersonate her in Paris for a few days, while she seeks Harry in London, to try to find a way out of her muddle.

Sheila, scenting adventure agrees.

Constance gives Sheila her clothes and coaches her for the role she is to play. A first-class passenger.

TOMMY FITZGERALD, an old beau of Constance's, sees Sheila and hails her as Constance. Sheila tells him he has made a mistake.

At Southampton Constance leaves the ship as Sheila Allen, with all of Sheila's effects, including her passport.

At Harve, Fitzgerald sees Sheila with Constance's passport and she says she is the heiress, and explains the tourist passage as payment of a bet. A strange woman embraces her as an old friend.

There she receives a message from the Count, who is in Paris.

The Reckoning

CHAPTER 15—

At Bay

As Sheila looked at the Count de Bellefonte, she saw a dull flush rise in his cheeks. His manner was perfectly calm, but she knew that he was furiously angry.

"He's a mean-tempered brute," she said to herself. "He's angry enough to beat me. Still, there's something to be said in his behalf. He thinks I'm Constance Kerr, whom he married, and, when you remember that she ran away from him within a hour of their marriage, without a word, there's some excuse for his rage."

It hardly seemed possible to her that he would accept her as Constance Kerr, but he did, and without a single doubtful glance.

As he bowed and kissed her hand, he said: "Please dismiss your maid. I must talk to you."

When the maid had left, he paced up and down the room. "Now, Constance, be good enough to explain this outrageous conduct of yours. First you marry me, then you leave me flat, as you Americans say. Then you take passage abroad, leaving me to guess what has become of you. Finally, when I follow you and locate you here, you tell your maid to tell me that you're not here, that it's a mistake, that you've left for London. You — you ——" He paused for want of breath.

Sheila suppressed a wild desire to laugh. That French maid, with her scant knowledge of English, had faithfully repeated every word that Sheila had said when she was making her hurried exit from the hotel after learning that the Count was on the wire. What explanation would fit this situation? Obviously, nothing but the facts, and Sheila could not reveal them without betraying Constance Kerr. And that she couldn't do.

Walking up to the fuming Count, she smiled at him in her most conciliatory manner. "Please, Jean," she begged, "don't be so angry. I can't bear it." She paused and looked at him closely. He was very handsome, she decided. It wouldn't do any harm to tell him that.

"Jean," she said softly, "you are the handsomest man I know."

Instantly his expression softened. Then a look of suspicion crept into his eyes. "What are you trying to do?" he asked. "I want an explanation, not flattery."

She gazed at him appealingly. "I'm trying to tell you what happened," she began, when suddenly a terrible thought struck her. "Jean," she cried, "you haven't told any one that we're married?"

"Hardly," he rejoined stiffly. "That would have involved questions as to your whereabouts, and what bridegroom cares to admit that he doesn't know where his bride is?"

Sheila sighed with relief. "As long as you didn't announce our marriage, everything is all right. Now, Jean, this is what happened. After father's yacht had left New York, one of his old busybody friends must have seen us together at dinner, and the result was a wire to father that I was in town, instead of at my house-party, there was a furious message from father — 'Marry that fortune-hunter and I'll cut you off without a penny, etc., etc! Well, what was I to do? We were already married. I radioed back that I was leaving for Europe shortly and would meet the yacht at whatever Mediterranean port he named. Then I left for Europe. Oh, I admit that I wasn't very clever in the way I managed things, Jean. I should have taken you into my confidence, but I was afraid that I would never have the courage to leave you, once I had seen you again, so I just rushed off. I wired mother's secretary from the ship to tell you that I would communicate with you, but I suppose she just didn't do it, knowing how mother feels about you."

Bellefonte, by this time, was completely placated. "My poor Constance," he murmured, seizing her hand. "I've been very unjust to you. Forgive me, Constance."

But Sheila silenced him with a gesture and went on. She knew his weakness and she played upon it craftily.

"I don't want father to disinherit me," she continued. "For myself I don't care. But you — I want you to have a career, to enter the diplomatic service, perhaps, and that means money. I can see you as an ambassador——"

"And you," he interposed, "will help me. With your tact, your talent for social leadership, your gift of diplomacy——"

"Yes, yes," she murmured to herself. "That's only half of it."

"And now," he cried, "let me tell you how I found you. When you didn't return that day, something told me you had left for Europe. I made a tour of the steamship offices and found the clerk who had sold you your ticket. The rest was easy. I obtained the last reservation on a fast boat bound for England. When you did not leave your ship at Southampton, I knew you were going on to Paris. So I flew the channel and watched the papers here for news of your arrival. And how glad I am that I've found you."

Sheila suddenly felt that she had reached the limit of her endurance. She held out her hand. "You must go now, Jean," she said. "I can't talk any more now. I'm dead for sleep."

The Count bowed over her hand and kissed it. "Good night," he murmured. "Tomorrow we will make our plans. I have an idea that I think will solve all our difficulties. I am so eager topropose it to you."

Sheila closed the door after him with a feeling of unutterable relief. Thank Heaven, she would have to keep up this masquerade only a few days longer! Then Constance would arrive. She wondered what Constance was doing now. Had she known, her courage would have deserted her.

Politically Speaking

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 28—Political plums are again beginning to fall into the laps of the chosen.

Rheba Crowford Spivalo, once the "Angel of Broadway," who stopped traffic in New York as she preached to theatre-going crowds, is to be the new state director of social welfare.

The pretty one-time Salvation army lassie, who stumped the state for Rolph in the primary campaign last fall, will inherit the $4,000-a-year job as head of the division of aid to the aged, blind, adopted and orphan aid.

Her staunch rival for the position, Mrs. Harry Michael, Los Angeles clubwoman, is to become a member of the state board of social welfare, filling the vacancy caused by retirement of President Robert G. Sproul of the University of California.

The next to be appointed is Dudley Moulton, San Francisco horticultural commissioner, who is slated to become state director of agriculture, secceeding Avery S. Hayt, who has been acting in that position since the resignation of George H. Hecke, who held the post for 14 years.

The row is still raging over Moulton's appointment. But Governor Rolph wants him, and the governor usually gets what he wants. Moulton's stock went up a few notches when Professor R. L. Adams, dean of the College of Agriculture, University of California, endorsed his candidacy. Adams had been considered one of the most formidable compromise candidates.

After a 4-hour conference at the state capitol, the governor and his state board of agriculture remained at loggerheads over selection of a director. The board indicated they would accept any candidate for the position other than Moulton.

Eric Cullenward, San Francisco and Los Angeles newspaper man, will become secretary of the state highway commission, editor of the publicity Works Bulletin, a monthly magazine, and take charge of publicity for the major bills to be signed by the governor this month, it has been announced.

Cullenward succeeds George Mansfield, former Orville publisher, whose resignation was requested for political reasons. Another public works employee upon whim the ax fell this week was Joseph P. Hall, superintendent of prison road camps. He is to be succeeded by Fred Seymore, former assistant superintendent of prison road camps during the Richardson administration.

The governor handed out a $10,000-a-year plum to his friend, Judge Hugh Preston of Mendocino county, when he appointed him presiding justice of the third district court of appeal to succeed the late William M. Finch of Sacramento. The new justice is a brother of Justice John L. Preston of the supreme court. He will have to run again in 1932 for Judge Finch's unexpired term of 11 years.

Former Governor and Mrs. C. C. Young and their two daughters will sail for Europe next month on a trip for which the governor has prepared an itinerary and budget second only in detail to the famous state budgets of 1927 and 1929.

Roerich Banner Would Protect Art Treasures

Assembly at Bruges Will Seek World-wide Adoption

NEW YORK, May 28 (UP) — World-wide adoption of the Roerich Peace Pact and the Rorich Peace Banner is the aim of an international assembly to be held next August at Bruges, Belgium and which is being organized by M. Camille Tulpinck a member of the Royal Academy of Archology of Belgium. Both projects are fatherer by the Roerich Museum of New York. The first is designed to establish the inviolability of art museums and treasures, their sites, buildings and personnel by belligerents during any hostilities, and the second project provides for a distinctive flag to be flown over such institutions to identify them readily.

If these projects are ratified the worlds art works will be conceded the same theoretical immunity from the ravages of warfare now accorded to hospitals and asylums. The product of the world's great painters, sculptors, architects and other artists would be granted the same sort of tacit protection given to the sick and wounded.

The Roerich Peace Banner as now designed consists of three red spheres within a red circle on a white field, a symbol of eternity and unity.

When the Roerich Pact was first suggested it met with enthusiastic approval from many international sources. Endorsements of the idea were received by the Roerich Museum from educators, government officials, museum curators, artists and writers from many countries of Europe and from both North and South America.

The Roerich Museum, in presenting its support of the pact, draws attention to the fact that it might have protected some of the old monasteries of Spain, destroyed or damaged in the recent political disorders in that country.

The Assembly at Bruges will discuss among its topics:

1—Preservations of monuments, museums and collections: 2—Preservation of archives, libraries, etc.; 3—Safeguarding of science; 4—Preservation of nature; 5—Juridical questions; 6—Press and propaganda.

Divorces Gain; Marriages Lose During 1930 in State as Whole

San Mateo County Reverses Conditions General in Rest of California

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 28 (UP)—Dan Cupid was handed a hard jolt by the economic depression last year.

Although California increased its population by 220,000 during the 12-month period, there was less marrying and giving in marriage in 1930 than in 1929—and more divorces.

This was disclosed in figures just compiled by the state division of vital statistics, which showed that marriages dropped from 51,886 to 50,154 during the year, a decrease of 3.3 per cent.

By exactly that same percentage, divorces increased in the year. During the fiscal year in 1929 there were 15,099 divorces; in 1930 there were 15,603 divorces, a gain of 504, or 3.3 per cent.

San Mateo county reversed the situation, however, the report showed, having a total of 935 marriages in 1930, as compared with 885 in 1929. During the same period there were 104 divorces granted in 1930, while 1929 showed 120.

Los Angeles county contributed heavily to the drop in the marriage mart. Here the number of marriages fell from 19,650 in 1929 to 18,900 in 1930, while divorces increased from 7,115 to 7,284.

In San Francisco marriages decreased from 6,127 to 5,899 and divorces gained from 2,325 to 2,424.

Alameda county recorded 3,831 marriages in 1929 and 3,491 in 1930, while divorces rose from 1,231 to 1,336.

Alpine, California's tiniest county, boasted of but one wedding during the year, and shared honors with Sierra county by having no divorces.

Total weddings per 1,000 population in California were 9.4 in 1929 and 8.7 in 1930. Divorces for the state at large per 1,000 decreased slightly from 2.74 in 1929 to 2.72 in 1930.

Salvationists Help Many

OMAHA, May 25. (U.P.) — Six thousand seven hundred and thirty-one individuals were assisted by the local branch of the Salvation Army during the period December 1 to April 1, according to Major Charles Hepper, division commander. This is more than three times as many cases as have even been cared for during the same length of time, he said. More than 8,500 meals were served and 4,068 were given baths and free lodging.

MENLO PARK

The rainfall for the freak storm last Saturday and Sunday was .92 of an inch, making the total rainfall for the season ten inches. The fall this time last year was 13¾ inches.

The city council met in regular session Tuesday evening. All members were present with the exception of Councilman Blake. County Auditor Stack communicated with the council saying that he had sent a check for the second installment of the 1930-31 tax amounting to $3578.38.

F. Becker, in a letter, said that the Aetna Insurance Company would not renew the policy on the Ford car, owing to the injury to the machine last October. The policy expires on June 12.

Hans Agard and wife, in a communication to the council, withdrew their protest to the Pine Street improvement. They said the facts were misrepresented to them when they signed the protest.

The matter of improving Fremont street was brought up by the reading of a petition signed by the property owners who desired only a strip thirty feet wide oiled and macadamed. E. M. Rankin believed that was the type of improvements the people there wanted. In this he was vehemently contradicted by T. B. Mountanos, who declared that Rankin was a resident of Palo Alto and did not fully know the wishes of the property owners on Fremont street. He believed that people wanted complete improvements and not temporary street work. After a long discusion in which numerous property owners took part, it was agreed that the taxpayers on the street hold a meeting at which the city engineer would be present and give data regarding the different type of improvements to be considered and come to the council at some future date with an agreed plan of improvements.

On Monday evening last the Stanford Park Association, composed of the residents of that district, gave a dinner at Cafe de Paris, Atherton, in celebration of the completion of street improvements there. Among the guests were the city officials of Menlo Park and county officers. About one hundred were present to enjoy the palatable dinner and the program that followed. A. Seiller, president of the association, in a neat address, told of the accomplishments wrought by the completion of the street improvements, and the satisfaction and happiness brought to the residents. James Armstrong was called upon to act as toastmaster and in a graceful manner and in well phrazed words introduced the speakers. George A. Montell was eloquent in telling of the progress of his district and what the new improvements meant to that locality. Mayor W. H. Weden spoke in a humorous vein. He disclaimed any credit for the good work accomplished in Stanford Park. He rather gave all honor to the progressive citizens of that section for whatever was done.

Supervisor John W. Poole voiced the praises of the citizens of Stanford Park for their progress in constructing good streets that would lure the home seeker. County Clerk Hinman was in good form, making a splendid speech in which he spoke highly of the foresight and progress of the citizens residing by the San Francisquito Creek. Assemblyman Frank Lee Crist of Palo Alto brought loud laughter by his witty sallies and humorous stories. County Surveyor James made a brief speech on the importance of good streets in a community. City Engineer Mehl, was modest in his address referring to the street work in a manner that brought forth applause. The floor was then cleared for dancing and for several hours all enjoyed the whirl of the dance. Stanford Park was the dream of the late Dr. W. M. Barrett, who lived in Redwood City many years ago. He was a southerner and a dreamer. He saw visions of a great city in the Stanford Park. He visioned that to that place would come the cultured, the learned and there too, would come the youth of the land to get inspiration at the great seat of learning. He believed that some day a bridge would be constructed across the creek and that a highway would lead to the campus making Stanford Park the nearest approach to the big university. Some thirty years ago he purchased the land adjoining the creek and called it Stanford Park. The doctor did not live to see his dream come true, but the construction of the new streets is the beginning of the accomplishment of that dream for in no far distant date the bridge will be built and the thoroughfare constructed. When that is done Stanford Park will come into its own and Dr. Barrett's dream will be realized.

Fred Metcalf and family will depart on June 3 for Southern California for a month's vacation. They will not return to Menlo Park to live, but will probably buy a home on the peninsula, closer to San Francisco. The Metcalfs carry with them the best wishes of the people of Menlo Park for their futurea success.

Senator Samuel M. Shortridge will deliver the Memorial Day address at Los Angeles tomorrow. He was selected as the outstanding orator of the state to pay a tribute to the departed. His afforts on this occasion promises to be the best of his career.

The Forty Hours Devotion services just completed in the Church of the Nativity was well attended. This is an annual event in the church. The attendance was greater than at any other year.

The Holy Cross cemetery, that will be visited tomorrow by hundreds, presents an attractive appearance and is beautiful. This is due to the generous contributions of those who have relatives buried there.

Carl Mettler, a pioneer baker of San Francisco, passed away at his home in Redwood City from the effects of an incurable malady, last Saturday. About eight years ago Mettler bought the C. N. Felton home here for $27,000 and a few years ago sold it for $55,000. He then went to Redwood City, where he established a bakery. The deceased was well known and liked in San Francisco and the peninsula. He was aged 51 years.

The Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West will march out in a body to Holy Cross cemetery tomorrow to decorate the graves of the departed members. This is an annual custom and is attended with impressive ceremony.

Peter D. Keenan, superintendent of the San Francisco Health Farm back of Redwood City, has purchased a large dwelling near Emerald Lake, to which place he will move his family next month. The Keenan home here is to be sold. The new home brings Mr. Keenan close to his employment.

After a short illness and with pious resignation Sister Mary of the Infant Jesus, O. P., passed away in Corpus Christi Monastery last Saturday. Besides the sisters, her aunt was with her when the end came. The deceased was the daughter of the late Thomas S. Barry and Mary L. Barry. She came here from San Francisco when the monastery was opened three years ago, but was a member of the order before that time. The good sister was born in Alaska twenty-three years ago, joining the cloister at the age of seventeen years. Sister Mary was a devout and holy woman, a saint upon earth. She spent much of her time in prayer and meditation, supplicating heaven for the shortcomings of mankind and praying for the conversion of sinners and the alleviation of the pain of those in distress and suffering. As she lay in state with her somber robes about her, in the private chapel of the monastery, one could see the heavenly touch upon her pallid, but beautiful countenance. She resembled The Little Flower, so peaceful and sweet was her sleep, which comes to those who die in the embraces of the Lord and in his divine service. The hundreds who passed her bier received renewed inspiration for good and hope of eternal reward. Like Saint Theresa, who promised to send flowers from heaven, Sister Mary will shower her blessings from her home on high to this community in which a portion of her pure young life was spent in prayer and in communion with heavenly hosts. The saintly woman was laid away in the crypt of the monastery on Monday. She is the second sister to be placed there. Sister Mary has a sister also a member of the cloister and to her this community pours out its sympathy in her loss.

SPAIN'S LEADERS PLAN REFORMS ON WIDE SCALE

By William Lander

MADRID, May 28 (U.P.) — The Spanish Republic has gone in for reforms on a profound basis, but has avoided the circus-like measures which featured the days of the genial Dictator, the late General Primo de Rivera.

When Primo de Rivera took hold of running the country aided by a strict censorship of the press—he attempted to make sweeping reforms in the beaurocratic organizations in the capital. Government employes must all go to work daily, and hence many, who for years had not gone to their offices at all, suddenly appeared and found no place to work, since there were not enough desks to go around both for those who habitually worked and those who did not work but drew salaries just the same. The Republic, although it easily could have done away with all the employes of its predecessor, has respected all those in the employ of the civil service who continue in their jobs just as if nothing had happened. And no strenuous orders have been issued to the employes, demanding a full day's work from them, for example.

One of the biggest changes to be effected by the overthrow of the monarchy will be in the field of education. Spain's illiterate population is approximately half its inhabitants. When Primo de Rivera came into power he quickly offered a solution. Since half could read and write, and the other half could not—why all that was necessary was for the half that did know to teach the other half, and in a few months the country would be 100 per cent literate. And to set an example, he proposed himself to teach four persons how to read and write. For a few days four boys would come to his office for their lessons, but he soon found that this would not work. Now royal palaces in some places will become schools; new ones will be constructed in others; and many of the school houses which Primo built but left unprovided with teachers will now get teachers. The University city, started as a monument to ex-King Alfonso XIII, will be completed.

SPEAKING of SPORT

BY FRANK GETTY

Inside Workings of Wrestling Revealed

Ed (Strangler) Lewis attempted to force Jim Londos into a world's heavyweight wrestling championship match recently, and the effort revealel some of the inside workings of the mat game.

Both are claimants to the title. Lewis is champion of the Sandow group. Londos is champion of the Curley group.

The wrestlers in each group are booked like vaudeville acts, General John V. Clinnin, chairman of the Illinois state athletic commission, revealed at the hearing, and no one rose up to dispute him although both factions were represented.

"I don't think wrstling promoters have anything at all to say about the card they put on," said Clinnin. "If they want to put on Londos, they must take the whole card as submitted to them. The wrestlers have nothing to say about their opponents. The whole thing is manipulated just like a vaudeville circuit and I have the records here to substantiate that statement. And the wrestlers in one group will not meet those of the other group."

For two or more hours Billy Sandow, manager of Lewis, and Attorneys Edgar J. Cook and Arthus F. Albert bickered back and forth about a Lewis-Londos match.

Hot Words Bandied

It seemed from what transpired at the meeting, that Lewis really wants the match, and that Londos' main idea is to keep out of it.

"If Lewis will cleanse himself of the odium that attaches to his name throughout the country and defeat two of three good men like Shikat, Steele or Steinke, Mr. Londos will be glad to meet Mr. Lewis." Londos' representatives reiterated a dozen times.

"The issue is between Lewis and Londos," thundered Sandow. "Londos isn't champion, never has been one, and never will be. Lewis has defeated him 14 times and Londos is afraid to get into the ring with him. You gentlemen have been coached, but not good enough. You are cornered and you know it. Lewis is ready to wrestle Londos for nothing, with all profits to go to the American Legion. You say Lewis has to clear himself of this and that. Gentlemen, Londos has to clear himself of cowardice."

Londos' attorneys produced a lot of newspaper clippings to deprecate Lewis.

"If you want to produce newspaper clippings as evidence, I have one here that charges Londos with being arrested for larceny," said Sandow. "Lewis never went around over the country cheating people of his own race. Gentlemen, you came up here to sling mud, we came up here to get a match with Londos."

"That is out of the question, Londos will never meet Lewis until he purges himself of his bad name with the wrestling fans," answered Londos' attorneys.

The meeting ended by General Clinnin saying that Lewis had made a bona fide offer to meet Londos and that it had been refused, and that henceforth no wrestler could appear in Illinois and represent himself as world's heavyweight champion until the issue had been determined in a bona fide contest.

SMITH BOY GOES HOME SEEKING GOLF HONORS

CARNOUSTIE, Scotland, May 28 (UP)—Carnoustie golfers and clans are famous throughout the world, at least wherever people play golf or have a spot in their heart for kilts.

Smith is a great Carnoustie name. This year Macdonald Smith will attempt to win the one big national event a Carnoustie man has yet to win. Macdonald Smith is a local boy. He left here twenty years ago to seek fame and fortune in the United States.

Macdonald Smith is one of five brothers who were professionals simultaneously in the United States. Willie was United States Open champion in 1899. He died in 1917. Alex, twice United States Open champion before the late war, died in 1930.

The Smiths, Willie and Alex, were the pioneers in seeking their fortune abroad. Upwards of 250 Carnoustie boys have followed these leaders.

Other Great Golfers

Archie Simpson was the youngest of six brothers, all good golfers, who settled in Carnoustie. He was runner-up twice in the British Open championship. He has been a professional in the United States since 1911. Jack, the eldest, was Open champion in 1884, but died a comparatively young man.

Robert Harris, winner of the British Amateur in 1925, is another local boy.

Carnoustie gave to the world Stewart Maiden. He taught Bobby Jones the fundamentals of the game. As Jones puts it, "The best luck that ever I had in golf was when Stewart Maiden came from Carnoustie, Scotland, to be professional at the East Lake Club. Stewart never gave me a lesson in golf, though he has spent many hours coaching me when I was in a slump with one club or another. I picked up my game watching him play unconsciously as a monkey and as imitatively."

NEW BALL NOT BLAMED

PITTSBURG, May 28 (UP)—Barney Dreyfuss, Pittsburg Pirate owner, does not believe the new National League ball is responsible for the slump in hitting of many of the league stars. "The new ball isn't to blame for the low averages of Terry, Wilson, O'Doul and other hitters," Dreyfuss said. "They just haven't hit their stride."

His guide was dainty Mitzi Green, who, posed above with the famous desert character, coyly asked him where he got his gold. "Nobody has found out yet," was Scotty's laconic reply, "and nobody ever will."

Piute Gamblers Entertain with Ancient Games

"Passing the Stick" Revived By Indians Near Reno

RENO, Nev., May 28 UP)—Picturesque gatherings of Piute and Washoe Indians have been congregating of late on the outskirts of Carson City to review the ancient Indian game of "Passing the Stick."

Drawn by the colorful scene, hundreds of palefaces visit the Indian village every day to witness the game.

"Passing the Stick" is a guess game peculiar to the redskins of Nevada. A stick about three inches long and of the diameter of a pencil is used. The contents from two parallel lines, distant about three feet from each other, with fifteen to twenty Indian bucks on a side. The leader of each side is in the center of the line and the players kneel and fold their arms over their chests.

Like "Button Button"

Agreement is made as to the side starting the contest. The leader of the side taking the offense places the tiny stick in his right hand, then conceals both hands behind his back and rapidly change the trophy from hand to hand. Finally he brings both hands to the front, tightly clinched, and folds his arms stoically.

The opposing players then guess in which hand the stick reposes, the first call deciding the the issue. Oftimes seven or eight braves will call out the winning hand, or fail to guess correctly. Should the first guess prove right the stick changes sides, and the leader of the opponents has an opportunity to demonstrate his shuffling abilities.

From time to time other Indians among the players are given the honor of holding the vital stick and endeavoring to outguess the other side. The Indian is aptly termed "poker face," since his expression remains the same and he gives no hint as to the stick's whereabouts.

Big Gambling Game

Points are scored on the basis of correct guesses, and during an afternoon considerable money changes hands. Blankets, saddles, bridles and even horses are won or lost.

During the time the game is in progress the Indians keep up an incessant chant. The tribal musician accompanies this chant by beating on the tom tom.

The tom tom used here is an ordinary wash tub of the sheet metal variety, bottom up on the ground. A stick with notches about an inch apart, is held in the musician's hand, one end resting on the tub. A second stick is rolled up and down the notched stick. The sound created is weird and barbarous.

WATER PUP FOUND

TROY, O., (UP)—A spicie of water dog recently was captured in Lost Creek, near here, by Isaac Kizer. The curiosity was about nine inches long, had four feet and gills very similar to soft red flowers.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOP

HOLLYWOOD, May 28 (UP) — Ina Claire, whose repeated portrayals of the smart modern woman on stage and screen has made her a keen student of social phychology, volunteers a few remarks.

"We can't pull the strings and make life turn out as neatly as it does in the theatre . . .

"The modern woman has fallen between two stools—she has not been educated to be an enchantress and she scorns being a Victorian. . . .

"There ought to be a decalogue for the guidance of wives . . .

"In dealing with men, perfume is more effective than philosphy."

In the role of Sara Jaffrey, which she played on the stage in "Rebound" and which she brings to the screen in the film of the same name, Miss Claire has another modern character to study.

"Sometimes I think that the so-called 'independent' woman misses things up more than anybody," she said. "She has acquired the masculine ways of achieving a career, but has lost feminine technique in her personal relations with men. She has forgotten that perfume is more effective than philosophy. In sex, her very independence is against her.

"The answer? I think the modern woman needs to grow a feminine brain again. In the story of 'Rebound' Sara Jaffrey's happiness is saved only when her woman's wit begins to work. It's the same in life.

"It is curious about men"—and Ina smiled whimsically — "they want us to believe that they think women finer than men, and yet they expect every indulgence and toleration of their own weaknesses. Sometimes it seems as though all that a man wants of a woman is quality—a poetry, a sweetness, perhaps. The moment she obtrudes with feelings and vanities of her own, they are bored. This is something the modern woman's ideal refuses to realize. Yet there's no use saying to men 'Don't be that way.' There is but one question for the woman to ask herself: 'Do I want to keep him? If she wants him, she must humor him."

Two firm supporters of aviation in the film colony are Ann Harding and her husband, Harry Bannister, stage and screen player.

They recently returned from the East in their own plane, a special cabin model. When not working in pictures, both take daily flights.

"I can always tell the sound of our plane," Miss Harding said. "When Harry goes up without me he flies over the house just after taking off and again before landing. The sound of the engine is different to my ears from that of any of the other planes that circle the hills where we live.

"That leads me to prophesy that in the not too distant future the housewife will soon time the hour of the evening meal by the whirr of the good man's motor overhead as he returns from the day's work in the city.

"Far-fetched? Perhaps, but lots of less believeable things have come true. Anyway, it's a pleasant prophesy."

Miss Harding will shortly end her vacation and temporarily halt her flying to begin work on "Devotion" her next RKO-Pathe picture. It is adapted from Pamela Wayrne's popular novel, "A Little Flat in the Temple."

Symbols of Enduring Sacrifice

Miss Margaret McCarthy, government nurse, receiving the poppies made by Holly Yoder, disabled war veteran, for the American Legion Auxiliary to help families distressed by the havoc of war.

THE little red paper memorial poppies California disabled World War veterans have been making in the government hospitals for the last few months are to be sold in every community in this state on May 23, Poppy Day, by the American Legion Auxiliary.

Among the French farmers who till the battlefields of the World War there is a tradition that where the men fell the thickest these little wild flowers push up their blooms in the greatest profusion. A symbolic connection is seen between the blood of the slain and the bright red blossoms of the poppies.

"Honor the dead and serve the living" is the slogan of the Auxiliary in its efforts to have every one in California wear one of these poppies on Poppy Day. The sale of the poppies not only enables the Auxiliary to carry on its welfare work for disabled veterans and their families but also recalls in an inspiring way the deeds of the men who died in the poppy fields of France and Belgium.

"Poppies sold by the Auxiliary," says Mrs. Ethel Flynn, secretary of the organization, "mean much for the relief of war sufferers. The money is spent for veteran welfare work in the community the poppy is sold and the disabled veteran who made the poppy is paid for his work so he can obtain the necessities of life."

COUNTIES OF STATE SPEND MILLIONS ON GOOD ROADS

San Mateo County Reports $377,101 Spent on Highways

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 28—While California is striding toward its $120,000,000 paved highway program with seven-league boots, the counties of the state are not lagging behind.

Last year alone the 58 counties of California spent a total of $26,453,393.35 for highway construction and maintenance, bridges, etc., according to a statement just compiled by State Controller Ray L. Riley for Governor Rolph.

San Mateo county, the report showed, expended a total of $377,101 on its county roads during the year.

Los Angeles, largest county in the state, led all the counties of California in highway improvements with a total of $5,876,104.

San Francisco spent $5,210,181 for highways, while Aalmeda county stood third with $1,234,755.

"California counties received money from the state for highway improvements through two sources," Riley explained.

"One of these is from the license fees charged annually for automobile plates. After the cost of the division of motor vehicles and the California highway patrol are deducted, the fees are apportioned among counties on a basis of automobile registration.

"Counties also receive one cent of the 3-cent tax per gallon on gasoline, which is also apportioned on a basis of registration."

The larger county highway expenditures for the year were as follows: Monterey, $1,483,410; Orange, $1,220,661; San Bernardino, $953,112; Fresno, $807,585; Kern, $663,245; Sonoma, $693,806; Santa Clara, $649,999, and Marin, $648,424.

Ships Use Wireless Phone

STOCKHOLM, May 25. (U.P.)—The wireless telephone is now widely used by the Swedish merchant marine. It is installed on many Swedish ships in the Baltic Sea, and four wireless stations on the eastern and southern coast are equipped to transmit spoken messages. It is also employed by the Swedish pilot service between outlying lighthouses and the mainland. The Swedish-American line will soon install wireless phones in its motorships, Gripsholm and Kungsholm.

★ BUILDERS OF CALIFORNIA

Suppose you couldn't get gasoline Anywhere

IMAGINE: Every motor vehicle in California stopped dead for want of fuel.

It would not happen, of course. But it does illustrate how everyone depends on gasoline. California motorists, in 1930, used one billion, three hundred million gallons.

In production, refining and distribution, the petroleum industry employs an estimated 300,000 people throughout the state. Such widespread operations enable the major oil companies to make extensive use of the statewide service of this Bank.

With 200 separate Bank of America accounts in 147 communities, these companies collect thousands of small checks quickly; transfer funds with minimum delay and expense; obtain accurate reports and appraisals from widely-separated localities; simplify their accounting and effect other economies which mean improved service to motorists.

The Bank also serves approximately 75,000 individual depositors in the industry—any one of whom may be suddenly transferred to another territory. In this event, the Bank will promptly forward funds — and even valuables in safe deposit — to any branch; and with a letter of introduction, the customer quickly feels at home.

Bank of America is organized to give complete, convenient service to any business man — to any family — to you.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resist a substitute.

HIS EXCELLENCY SURPRISED!

His excellency, Governor Rolph, was taken by surprise at a recent Air Circus in Watsonville when Laura Richards, Gilroy cowgirl, rode into the airport and presented the flying governor with an invitation to attend the Gilroy Round-Up and Gymkhanua which will be held in that city on June 13th and 14th. The governor was agreeably surprised and told the young lady that he expected to attend the Gymkhana in Gilroy and officially open the big show for the citizens of that city.

Week at the Capitol

By HOMER L. ROBERTS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 28—With petitions already in circulation invoking the referendum against the reapportionment measures adopted by the 1931 legislature, Governor Rolph has announced he will call a special election if the proposition qualifies or the ballot.

This would prevent nine of California's 20 congressmen from having to run at large at the general election in 1932. It is considered likely that the special election would be held the same day as the presidential primary in May, 1932.

Cost of the legislative session just closed was more than $400,000. According to an estimate of State Controller Ray L. Riley, the total cost, exclusive of printing, was $227,527, as compared with $250,729 in 1929.

The latter session, it will be remembered, was extended two weeks on account of the impeachment trial of Superior Judge Carlos Hardy of Los Angeles for taking a $2,500 check from Aimee Semple McPherson. Printing costs of the session just closed were estimated at $188,000.

Validity of several hundred "borrowed" bills—particulary those involving appropriations—enacted by the 1931 legislature, must be decided by supreme court, Riley has decided.

These measures, he pointed out, may be unconstitutional because they were either sponsored by legislators other than those who originally introduced them or carried subject matter not in accord with original titles.

Should they be held unconstitutional, many borrowed measures not providing for expenditure of state funds may likewise be stricken from the statute books.

Assemblyman Dan Emmett of Santa Paula, who punched a "sassy" traffic cop in the nose just before the session ended, faces prosecution on charges of assault and battery. In police court this week he pleaded not guilty to the charges through his attorney, Assemblyman Peruy G. West of Sacramento.

Emmett was stopped for "jaywalking" across traffic. The officer seized his arm, the assemblyman said, and twisted it so as to break two fingers. He struck out in self-defense, he told the local police judge, and his fist accidentally hit the cop's nose.

Only two of the 54 women sent to San Quentin state prison in the last 18 months were never married, according to a report by Warden James B. Holohan to Dan O'Brien, director of penology. Of the others, 37 were married, 6 were divorcees, 8 widows and one separated from her husband. Forgery is the favorite crime of women, and more than half the women prisoners are under the age of 30 years, the report said.

Miss Mabel R. Gillis, California state librarian, will be one of the speakers at the 53rd annual conference of the American Library association July 22 to 27 at Yale University, New Haven, Conn. Her address will be on the means of enlarging state library reference resources.

Former Resident Passes in City

The death in San Francisco on the 26th instant of Mary E Bollinger, the widow of David A. Bollinger, recalls two of San Mateo county's pioneer families. David Bollinger was the son of Christopher Bollinger who settled in the Canyada near the upper Crystal Springs lake in the early 50's. Close by was the family of John Moran, whose daughter became the wife of Davè. The young couple made their home in Santa Clara where they resided until the death of the husband, after which Mrs. Bollinger went to San Francisco and resided with her daughter until her death. When the Spring Valley Company enlarged its water plant in this county it bought out the farmers near the lake and the early settlers in that locality moved away.

Amphlett Orator At N. S. G. W. Meet

One of the outstanding addresses at the Grand Parlor of Native Sons that convened at Del Monte last week was made by Horace Amphlett of San Mateo, who was a delegate from Redwood Parlor N. S. G. W. It was his first appearance at a Grand Parlor. On Monday Memorial services were held and it was on this occasion that Amphlett distinguished himself in delivering one of the most eloquent memorial addresses ever heard in any grand parlor. Thre orators preceeded him on the rostrum, so he was put upon his mettle, and so well did he accomplish his task that every member of the grand parlor congratulated him upon his splendid effort in his touching eulogy paid the memory of the departed members of the order. Amphlett was hailed as California's matchless orator.

NO MANSION FOR GOVERNOR ROLPH

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 28 (UP)—Governor Rolph will not get a new executive mansion this year.

The legislature turned down a request for $250,000 to erect a new mansion to replace the old-fashioned frame house where California's governors have lived since the gay 90's.

Instead, they approved the expenditure of $7,500 to renovate the the old mansion, which to many Sacramentans is a reminder of the days, when families sat out on the porch of an evening and there were neither movies, automobiles, nor Spanish architecture.

Others cherished the old building because it was erected by Lincoln Steffen's father, and that famous muckraker of cities grew up in it. Steffens, now a mellow philosopher and author of an autobiography that has been haled as a great contribution to the understanding of our times and country, was a recent visitor to California.
